Boards used in the kitchen

PARTICAL BOARD

For those on a tight budget, particle board, despite being less durable and adaptable, can be an affordable solution, particularly when carving cabinet backs and shelves

H.D.F

HDF boards are often used as the core material for kitchen cabinets and bathroom vanities due to their resistance to moisture and humidity.

PLYWOOD

Plywood has a significantly longer life expectancy thanks to its incredible durability, allowing it to withstand damage from impact or heavy loads

H.D.H.M.R

Their water-resistant properties make them highly suitable for humid environments like kitchens

B.W.R PLY

BWR plywood is also resistant to humidity and atmospheric moisture. These plys are water resistant and suitable for kitchens and places where water exposure is minimal.

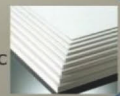

B.W.P PLY

BWP plywood is because it's entirely waterproof or simply boiling water proof. Such a plywood sheet works perfectly to be used in areas of high moisture, such as your kitchen or the bathroom

W.P.C BOARD

These boards are widely used for modular kitchens, wall paneling, wardrobes, window and door frames, bathroom cabinets, railings, and office furniture. WPC boards make for the perfect material for high moisture retention areas.
